

Governance and Regulation Chair

Academic Director: Prof. Eric Brousseau

The Governance and Regulation Chair is a research programme at the University Paris-Dauphine. It brings together regulated companies and regulatory authorities operating in different sectors – energy (electricity and gas), transport, communications and media, online gambling and healthcare –, as well as representatives from the main French public institutions. The Chair is composed of a robust network of academics, professionals, policy-makers and experts with a sound expertise in the fields of economics and management, law and politics.

Thanks to its cross-sectoral and multidisciplinary approach, the Governance and Regulation Chair aims at contributing to a better understanding of the dynamics, models and performances of regulation.

A network of regulatory experts and stakeholders

The Governance and Regulation Chair can rely on:

- A robust multidisciplinary academic network
- Renowned consulting firms giving a strong operational dimension to the Chair's work
- Regulatory authorities as members of an independent body (the Club of Regulators) working closely with the Chair
- Regulated companies supporting the Chair as patrons
- Representatives from the main French institutions involved in the analysis of public policies

Other actors, and in particular the users, are involved in the Chair's working groups and meetings.

Research, training and debate

The Governance and Regulation Chair

- carries out research projects on the organisation and assessment of economic governance with the aim of formulating proposals for adequate framework and tools,
- provides training programmes conceived for young academics as well as professionals,
- contributes to the public debate on governance and regulatory issues by disseminating knowledge to different audiences, and organising working groups and events involving the stakeholders.

Work programme

The Governance and Regulation Chair focuses on the following topics:

- The status of regulatory authorities and their interaction with other public authorities
- The organisation of relations between regulators, operators and users
- The interaction across different sectoral regulations or different levels of governance (local, national and European)
- The management of public policies objectives
- The regulatory tools
- The analysis of methods, effectiveness and legitimacy of firms' non-market strategies
